Special Cohort for College Educators and Leaders

UPEI, in partnership with Holland College, will offer a Master of Education (MEd) in Leadership in Learning with a focus on College Leadership - a special cohort for college educators, leaders and aspiring leaders. This is round four of this customized program.

FEATURES OF THIS SPECIAL COHORT

- 10 courses (6 online, 4 face-to-face in summer institutes in beautiful Charlottetown).
- All students in the cohort will be college educators, leaders and aspiring leaders.
- Instructors will be nationally recognized educational leaders with experience in university and college settings.
- Program completion within 30 months.
- Starting September 2015.

My experience in the MEd (Community College Leadership) program had a profound impact on my level of understanding of educational theory and practice. There were ample opportunities for networking, relationship building and real world application of learning through the interactive face-to-face and online learning environments that were created and fostered. In my current role I utilize the concepts that were facilitated during the program constantly and it has made me more adept and prepared to effectively lead a community college team. I highly recommend this program for its focus on applied research and approach to learning that builds on the community of practice created and fostered in the classroom.
