PhD Program in Molecular Immunology

The Health-Centered Research Clinic, Department of Applied Human Sciences, Faculty of Science, University of Prince Edward Island (UPEI) and the Virology Research Laboratory, Department of Pathology and Microbiology, Atlantic Veterinary College (AVC), UPEI, are seeking a highly motivated PhD graduate student with keen interest in Personalized Health Diagnostics. This is an industry-funded research project. The successful candidate will have MSc degree and undergraduate training in the field of molecular biology and immunology, and meet admission requirements for the PhD graduate program at AVC/UPEI Coop terms or other work experience in laboratory environments, and a working knowledge of real-time RT-qPCR assays will be considered an asset. For information on applying for AVC graduate programs, please see http://avc.upei./graduatestudies

The successful candidate will start the PhD graduate program on September 01, 2020.To apply, please send a letter of intent, MSc transcripts, a curriculum vitae and names and contact information (including e-mail addresses) of 3 referees either to:

Dr. Fred Kibenge, Professor of Virology and Chair Department of Pathology & Microbiology Atlantic Veterinary College University of Prince Edward Island 550 University Avenue, Charlottetown, PE C1A 4P3, Canada kibenge@upei.ca

or

Dr. Angela Riveroll,
Research Associate,
Health-Centered Research Clinic,
Department of Applied Human Sciences,
Faculty of Science,
University of Prince Edward Island
550 University Avenue, Charlottetown, PE C1A 4P3, Canada
anriveroll@upei.ca