

Science Atlantic Nutrition and Foods Conference 2020 Volunteer Job Descriptions

In order to ensure the conference runs smoothly, we need student volunteers to help out during the event. Volunteering allows free access at the Science Atlantic conference and a free t-shirt. It also is a great line on your curriculum vitae!

Bilingualism is an asset; however, it is not essential.

Volunteer positions for UPEI students

March 12, 2020

- 1-2 volunteers to make and distribute directional signs around campus
- Welcome package assembly

Volunteer positions for all students

March 13, 2020

- Registration: Greeting and welcoming students and faculty attending the conference. Providing needed information to our guests and presenters. Answering any questions regarding the conference and providing directions.

1-2 bilingual volunteers

- Reception: Set up and take down posters and banners, etc.
- Coat check: Gather guests' coats/jackets
- Social Media/ photographer: Promote the conference throughout the two days by taking photos of guests, speakers and participants.

March 14, 2020

- Registration: Greeting and welcoming students and faculty attending the conference. Providing needed information to our guests and presenters. Answering any questions regarding the conference and providing directions.

1-2 bilingual volunteers

- Set-up/ Takedown: posters, banners, assist presenters with posters
- Runners; assisting with other tasks including but not limited to printing documents and running errands
- Social Media/ photographer: Promote the conference throughout the two days by taking photos of guests, speakers and participants

If you are interested in volunteering, please contact your student representative for Science Atlantic Nutrition and Foods at your university.

You may also contact UPEI student coordinators Julia Heckbert, Katrina Nagge, and Imene Hank at scienceatlanticnf@upei.ca.