Call for Abstracts for Science Atlantic Nutrition and Foods Conference 2023
University of Prince Edward Island, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

This is a conference for undergraduate and graduate students and is an opportunity for them to present and share the results of their research projects in nutrition and food science.

Abstracts may be submitted in either French or English. Please follow the guidelines below.

Submission Guidelines and Requirements:

•Abstracts are due by April 14, 2023 at 4:00 pm Atlantic Standard Time. They should be submitted using the Science Atlantic Nutrition & Foods website https://www.upei.ca/programs/foods-and-nutrition/science-atlantic-conference/abstracts

•The number of abstracts that one person can submit is limited to one per corresponding author.

•The corresponding author should indicate which of three categories they prefer (oral presentation, poster presentation, or no preference). Preference is not guaranteed.
•Abstracts not meeting the criteria listed below and abstracts received after April 14 will not be considered.

Abstract Criteria:

•Abstracts must not exceed 250 words (word count excludes title and authors' name and affiliation).

•Abstracts should be structured with clearly identified headings, including an introduction indicating the importance of the research, a hypothesis (or research question /statement), objective(s), methods, results, discussion and conclusion(s). It is permitted to state in the abstract that results will be shown in the poster or oral presentation. Previously presented abstracts are welcome.

•The corresponding author must provide their email address with the abstract submission.

•All authors should identify as undergraduate or graduate and supervisor(s) and include their affiliation.

• All authors should indicate any research funding sources.

Results of abstract adjudication will be emailed to the corresponding author. Queries should be addressed directly to Dr. Jennifer Taylor at jtaylor@upei.ca
