Canadian Federation of University Women Charlottetown Graduate Scholarships in Arts & Education and Science & Nursing

DESCRIPTION

Founded in 1919, the Canadian Federation of University Women (CFUW) is a national, non-profit, non-partisan organization of nearly 10,000 women university graduates in 122 clubs across Canada. It is a member of the International Federation of University Women, and affiliation of 77 national associations and federations around the world.

CFUW provides its members with an opportunity to enjoy fellowship, to be stimulated and informed, to promote education through the awarding of scholarships, bursaries and grants, and to improve the status of women and human rights in general.

CFUW Charlottetown received its charter on August 16, 1955. Since that time, the Club has worked tirelessly to educate its members and the general public on matters of importance to all women. Studies included: the Marriage Act, minimum wage for women, pornography, abortion, child abuse, and education in depth. CFUW Charlottetown continues to inform its members on current issues so they may add their voice to those involved in improving the status of women.

CRITERIA

Eligible applicants are:

- Students enrolled in or applying to a full-time Masters or PhD program at UPEI
- UPEI graduates enrolled in or applying to a full time Masters or PhD program another accredited Canadian university (students applying to a graduate program must be accepted and enrolled in the program by September 1 of the application year)

There are two scholarships available:
