The McIntosh-MacLauchlan Writing Fellowships

DESCRIPTION

The McIntosh-MacLauchlan Writing Fellowship offers an exceptional opportunity to UPEI undergraduate students who have a gift for writing and a strong desire to spend the summer semester working as a writer. The recipients of the fellowships will have the equivalent of a summer job to create written works. Each fellow will have a UPEI mentor and access to shared office space on campus. The Fellowship is to be considered a full-time summer job and treated as such.

CRITERIA

Students applying for the McIntosh-MacLauchlan Writing Fellowship will be required to submit a 750-1000 word letter addressing why they are compelled to write and outlining what they would plan to do with this opportunity. Finalists will be required to participate in a live writing exercise for final selection. All undergraduate students are eligible to apply.

Applicants will be required to submit their writing for review at the end of the summer.

Fellows will attend Kingsbrae Conversation in St. Andrews, NB in June. (conference registration and accommodations are provided). Information about the Kingsbrae Conversations can be found at <https://www.kingsbraeconversations.com/annualgathering>

APPLICATION PROCESS (Deadline: February 27th)
