Introduction to the region, the University and its main campuses:

Katowice, home to the University of Silesia's main campus, is a vibrant city in southern Poland at the heart of the Silesian Province. With some 280.000 inhabitants, it is the capital of the Silesian Metropolitan Area, which is a conurbation of 2,1 mln people. Rich in history, it lies at the crossroads of cultures and influences, with a multicultural past located between Silesian, Polish, German, and Czech identities. Over the past twenty years, it has transformed from its industrial heritage into a cultural and business hub, with a very vibrant pub, restaurant, and club scene. Due to its proximity to the state border and with its excellent flight and train connections, Katowice is also a perfect base to explore Poland, Central Europe (with train connections to Prague, Berlin, Vienna, and Budapest) and Europe (most European destinations are within two to three hours of flight time). The historic city of Kraków (Cracow) – the former royal capital of the Kingdom of Poland and one of Poland's leading tourist destinations – lies east of Katowice and is only one hour away by train.

Sosnowiec, where the foreign languages campus is located and where most of the teaching in English is based, is also part of the Silesian Metropolitan Area, a minutes bus ride from the centre of Katowice. In fact, you will hardly notice that you have left one city and arrived in the other. Sosnowiec is a city of 185.000 inhabitants, and its history is shaped by its status as a border town of the Tsarist Empire (up to 1918) and as a city of Jewish entrepreneurs until WWII. It is now a little quieter than Katowice, but it has picturesque spots and a lively food and drink culture. It is on the main train line leading from Katowice to the east, and it is well connected to the capital of the metropolitan area by the bus network.

The University of Silesia is the largest public University in the Silesian province, providing education for nearly 21,000 students, including 900 international students, enrolled in 77 programmes: full-time and part-time studies, bachelor's, master's, and doctoral studies. The University has 3,200 employees, including teaching and research staff. Since its inception, nearly 260,000 graduates have completed their education at the University of Silesia.

Health insurance

The exchange students coming to our University are obliged to have health and accident insurance valid throughout their stay in Poland. It is recommended to have liability insurance as well. Please check the expiry date, scope and all provisions of the insurance policy you are going to buy. If you plan to travel to other countries during your stay in Poland, you must ensure that this is included in your insurance coverage.

Students from outside the European Union and EEA countries are obliged to obtain health insurance either through the Polish National Health Fund (NFZ) upon arrival in Poland or through a private insurance company in their home country or in Poland. The health insurance must be valid throughout your entire stay in Poland.

Depending on the terms and conditions of your insurance, you may receive health care free of charge, or you may be charged and have the costs reimbursed after returning home. The University of Silesia cannot endorse any private insurance agencies, so please choose carefully.

If you choose to join the Polish National Health Fund (NFZ), the monthly cost is around PLN 50 (12 EUR). When using health services, you will have to present your NFZ contract and the monthly premium payment receipt.

Accident insurance

Accident insurance is a policy that pays benefits to the beneficiary in the event of fatal or non-fatal accidents. Accident insurance covers loss of life resulting from a covered accident and can provide coverage for certain conditions (e.g., loss of limbs, loss of eyesight, etc.) resulting from an accident. The conditions which may be covered depend on the policy.
